FOREWORD

This little booklet containing three genealogical studies has resulted from the interest in the Bloomfield family - - past and present - - displayed by Cousin Jane Littell of Orange, New Jersey, and Cousin Walter Bloomfield of Nappanee, Indiana. From chatting with the former and corresponding with the latter, I realize that I have become as interested in matters genealogical as they.

The Library of the New Jersey Historical Society and the New York Public Library have provided much material, for which I am deeply grateful, A collection of genealogical data assembled by my father, the late Howard W. Bloomfield, has been very helpful, as have been records from old family Bibles. In addition, members of the family have been most gracious in contributing information. Special gratitude is due Cousin Walter Bloomfield, who has worked untiringly on the ancestors of Smith and John Bloomfield and has traced the descendants of John, and to Cousin Jane Littell, who has loaned me the study on Smith Bloomfield and his descendants, prepared by her brother, Bloomfield Littell, and has encouraged me to expand the study. In several cases, I have changed names and dates which were in the original study, but only when members of the family, Bible Records, or inscriptions on gravestones have revealed errors. The late Bloomfield Littell completed his valuable family record in 1930. The more recent material (1930-1951) has been obtained from various members of the Bloomfield family, all of whom have co-operated most kindly to the end that the members of the family may keep in touch with one another.

Sincere thanks go to all who have made this booklet possible, especially to Clarence R. Bloomfield of Putney, Vermont; Cora (Edwards) Campbell of Metuchen, New Jersey; Catharine Bloomfield Cunningham of East Haven, Connecticut; Zoe Edwards of Metuchen, New Jersey; Marjorie Hamilton of Arlington, Virginia; Elizabeth Mason of Short Hills, New Jersey; Edna (Bloomfield) Wildey of Yonkers, New York; James B. Bloomfield of Westbrook, Connecticut;

James T. Bloomfield of Plainfield, New Jersey; and Robert S. Littell of Madison, Connecticut.

It is my hope that "Smith Bloomfield - - His Ascendants and Descendants;" "The Descendants of John Bloomfield, Smith Bloomfield's Brother" and "The Ascendants of James Timothy Bloomfield and His Family" will be but the beginning of our genealogical studies of the Bloomfield family. At present , both Cousin Walter Bloomfield and I are attempting to trace other branches. May I ask that you share with us any information you may have concerning other lines of our family?

Eleanor M. Bloomfield.

TO THE READER

The reader is reminded that the Julian Calendar was in use in England and in the Colonies until 1752, at which time it was superseded by the Gregorian Calendar. Prior to 1752, New Year's Day fell on March twenty-fifth, which means that a year must be added to all dates falling in January, February, and the greater part of March. There was also a difference of eleven days. To illustrate, Mary, the daughter of Thomas Bloomfield II, was born on January 15, 1642, according to the Old Calendar. As we compute time, she was born on January 26, 1643.

All dates prior to 1752 have been given in the Old Style, so that they will conform to old records.

The lists of the children of our early ancestors in America have come from many different sources: old charts, letters, records, inscriptions on gravestones, Bible records, and information obtained in various books on the period. The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record (Volume LXVIII) by William Jones was discovered after the lists had been assembled. The material on the early Bloomfields contained in the volume by Jones is in substantial agreement, however, with the findings of this study.

SMITH BLOOMFIELD--HIS ASCENDANTS AND HIS DESCENDANTS

The Ancestors of Smith Bloomfield

Smith Bloomfield was a direct descendant of Henry Bloomfield of Woodbridge, Suffolkshire, England, whose son Thomas I came from England with his children: John, Thomas II, Nathaniel, Ezekial, and Mary. (1) They settled, ca. 1632, in Newbury, Massachusetts, where Thomas I died in 1639.#

Thomas Bloomfield II (2) married Mary_____, ca. 1640. They had the following children, all born in Newbury, Massachusetts:

Mary (b. Jan. 15, 1642-1681)# married Jonathan Dunham.
Sarah (b. Dec. 30, 1643) married John Dennis.
John (b. March 15, 1646)#married Sarah Moore, who died in 1681. He then married Elsie Heard (1684).
Thomas III (Dec. 12, 1648 - March 27, 1679) married Elizabeth Dennis in May, 1676.
Nathaniel (April 10, 1651 - May 31, 1689) was unmarried.

In 1665 or 1666, Thomas II removed to Woodbridge, Middlesex County, New Jersey.

Nathaniel (Feb. 9, 1688 - 1689)#
Jeremiah (January, 1693 - 1746)# married Katherine Weeks in 1723. His second wife was Sarah _____.

(1) Some authorities believe that Henry Bloomfield also came to Newbury.

(2) John P. Wall and Harold E. Pickersgill, History of Middlesex County, New Jersey, Vol. III, p. 214. (Monette believes Thomas I had two children -- Thomas II and a lame daughter, Mary, who married Jonathan Smith. See Monette's First Settlers, Vol. IV, p. 488.)

(3) Maria Annette Brush in "The Bloomfield Family," Genealogy, Brush-Bowers, lists a "Benjamin" instead of a "Nathaniel" among the children of Thomas II.

See "To the Reader"

Joseph (March 21, 1695 - May 16, 1782)# married Eunice Dunham in 1721.
Benjamin (1701 - May 26, 1772) married Susannah _____.
Mary (d. June 30, 1750) married Obediah Ayres.

Timothy Bloomfield I, son of Ezekial and Hope (Fitz Randolph) Bloomfield, was born in February, 1681 (1682 as we compute time today), and died after September 20, 1708. He married Rose Higgins (Higens) on April 2, 1707. Their children were Richard, Rebecca, and Sarah. It is possible that Timothy II and Rachael were children of Timothy I and a second or third wife:

Richard (January 4, 1708 - May, 1753,# married Sarah _____.
Rebecca (b. June 3, 1709).
Sarah (b. Aug. 19, 1710)

Rachael married David Kent.

Timothy Bloomfield II (ca. 1729 - January 1803), on May 22, 1749, married Sarah Ford, for whose family Fords, New Jersey, was named. After Sarah's death, in 1784, Timothy married Margarette Fitz Randolph. Timothy II and Sarah (Ford) Bloomfield had the following children:

John (March 17, 1750 or 1751 - April 3, 1808).# married Miriam Bloomfield in May, 1778).

Timothy III (b. 1766 - d. before Dec. 2, 1819) married Susannah Alston.
Sarah (b. Dec. 2, 1769) married Samuel Cutter and later John Manning.

Timothy II, although he did not serve in a military capacity, was named a member of the Committee of Observation for the Township of Woodbridge (4) in the County of Middlesex, January 7, 1775, and was exceedingly active in the War for Independence. The Rev. Mr. Dally in The History of Woodbridge and Vicinity indicates, that Timothy's house was a rendezvous for the Whigs and a meeting place for the "Jersey Blues," that his property was destroyed by the British when they were in Woodbridge durin the Revolutionary War, and that Timothy himself was taken prisoner by them.(5)

(6) An old family chart lists Stephen, who married Mary, and Rachael as children of Ellis. Since their names were given first, it is assumed that they were older than Smith and his brothers and sisters.

(7) Dr. Moses Bloomfield was a distinguished physician of Woodbridge, senior physician and surgeon in the hospitals of the United States, and representative in the Provincial Congress and General Assembly.

(8) Joseph Bloomfield was Governor of New Jersey from 1801-1802 and again from 1803 - 1812. He was a Major in the Revolutionary War and a Brigadier-General in the War of 1812.

Smith Bloomfield and His Descendants

Smith Bloomfield (December 22,1780 - May 11, 1865), son of Ellis and Huldah (Kent) Bloomfield, married Cathlene Vandenbergh, daughter of John Mandeville and Ann (Delamater) Vandenbergh (9), on October 25, 1804. The children of Smith and Cathlene (Vandenbergh) Bloomfield were:

Anna Cathlene (Oct. 11,1805 - July 9, 1842).
William (Feb. 8, 1808 - Jan. 23, 1879).
Maria Delia (Feb. 4, 1811 - Nov. 1815).
Ellis Smith (July 19, 1813 - Jan. 28, 1884).
Charles Edwin (Jan. 6, 1818 - Sept. 20, 1859).
Alonzo Mandeville (Aug. 18, 1822 - Sept. 2, 1830).
Julia Elvira (April 18, 1825 - Feb. 3, 1911).
Frederick Augustus Christian Berk (Oct. 20, 1827 - Oct. 12, 1863).

Cathlene, Smith Bloomfield's first wife, died on January 25, 1844, at the age of fifty-seven. His second wife was Hannah, another daughter of John Mandeville Vandenbergh and his wife, and the widow, with two children, of James V. Freeman. There were no children of the marriage of Smith and Hannah Bloomfield. Hannah died on April 22, 1847, in her forty-fifth year.

For his third wife, Smith Bloomfield married, on April 18, 1848, Miss Susan Louise Kip of New York City, formerly of Rhinebeck, New York. She died at Metuchen, New Jersey, on February 10, 1896. There were no children of this marriage.

(9) Ann Delamater was a descendant of Claude de Meistre, or or Delamater, a Huguenot, who was one of the original proprietors of the Harlem Commons of the City of New York and a magistrate who was prominent in colonial days. In 1630, he left France and Holland, coming to the New World. He died in 1683. His son Isaac Delamater had a son John, who married Anneka Waldron in 1714; and their son Samuel Delamater married Catalyna (or Catalyette), a daughter of Benjamin Waldron in October, 1756. Their daughter was Ann Delamater, who married John Mandeville Vandenbergh, whose daughters, Cathlene and Hannah, successively, married Smith Bloomfield. (The above mentioned Samuel Delemater served in the War for Independence.)

Smith Bloomfield was a contractor, who built many dwellings in the City of New York-- on Dominick Street, North Moore Street, and elsewhere. He amassed a fortune; and, in the year 1839, he settled near Metuchen, New Jersey, on the large farm that had been owned by Timothy Bloomfield and had, when Smith Bloomfield took possession of it, been in the Bloomfield family for approximately one hundred and seventy-five years. During the Revolutionary War, it had been the battleground of various conflicts between British and Colonial troops and had been a veritable "No Man's Land." He built a spacious home on this property on the Amboy Road, not far from Metuchen, which was standing until 1940 or 1941. It was an imposing dwelling, having large white pillars, extending to the roof on the second floor, and wing extensions on either side.

Smith Bloomfield was an elder in the Dutch Reformed Church in Metuchen. He died on May 11, 1865, and was interred in his plot in the cemetery of the Presbyterian Church of Metuchen, New Jersey. (10)

1. Anna Cathlene Bloomfield, daughter of Smith and Cathlene (Vandenbergh) Bloomfield, was born on October 11, 1805. She married Henry Halsey Brown on June 24, 1825. He died April 11, 1841, and was buried in Chester, New Jersey. She died on July 9, 1842, at the age of thirty-six. (11) There were no children.

II. William Bloomfield (Feb. 8, 1802 - Jan. 23, 1879), the eldest son of Smith and Cathlene (Vandenbergh) Bloomfield, married Catharine Croes, (Aug. 7, 1813 - Dec. 21, 1886), daughter of the Rev. John Croes, Rector of Christ Church, New Brunswick, New Jersey, and his wife Eleanor (Van Mater) Croes, on May 24, 1839. Catharine Croes was the granddaughter of the Right Reverend John Croes (12), the first Episcopal Bishop of New Jersey, and of his wife Martha (Crane) Croes. The children of William and Catharine (Croes) Bloomfield were Smith, Eleanor Van Mater, John Croes, William (who died young), Thomas Blanch, Jessie, and Charles Augustus.

(10) Dr. Hunt in his Metuchen and Her History said of Smith Bloomfield: "Mr. Smith Bloomfield, so long identified with religious interests here, and chief contributor to the building of the church, (Dutch Reformed Church), died May, 1865, full of years of devotion to the service of Christ." p. 20.

(11) The Smith Bloomfield Bible confirms the dates given above, and the date of Ann Cathlene's death is correct on the monument. There is, however, an error in the inscription on the monument; for she was thirty-six, not fifty-six, as stated, when she died.

(12) John Croes entered military service, during the War for Independence, when he was but sixteen. He served, for a time, as a recruiting sergeant in Newark, New Jersey, and later as sergeant-major under Lieutenant-Colonel Ely.

William Bloomfield graduated with distinction from Rutgers College, New Brunswick, New Jersey. He began his practice as an attorney and counsellor-at-law in New York City in 1832 and was a member of the firm of McElrath, Bloomfield, and Daly. As a lawyer, he was known for his high integrity and keen sense of honor. He was a vestryman of old St. John's Episcopal Church, Varick Street, New York City.

His home at 28 Dominick Street had been built by his father. While a boy, William Bloomfield lost an eye, and, therefore, wore glasses. In his latter days, he wore a long tail dress coat in his office and a large black cravat around his white stand-up collar.

William Bloomfield died suddenly on January 23, 1879, in the City of New York at the age of seventy-one. His wife, Catharine who survived him, died December 21, 1886. Both are buried in the Smith Bloomfield plot in Metuchen, New Jersey.

A. Smith Bloomfield, son of William and Catharine (Croes) Bloomfield, studied law and began its practice in the City of New York, where he also became a member of the Board of Education. Owing to ill health, he removed to Alexander, Minnesota, where he practiced law. He was Superintendent of the Public Schools of Douglas County and Judge of the Probate Court in 1874. He ran for Congress on the presidential ticket of Horace Greeley but was defeated. He married Mary E. Pitcher during an illness, but died a few days later, on October 19, 1874, at the age of thirty-five.

B. Eleanor Van Mater Bloomfield, daughter of William and Catharine (Croes) Bloomfield, was born on May 3, 1840, in the City of New York. After the death of her parents, she and her sister, Jessie, had an apartment on St. Nicholas Avenue, New York. Eleanor Van Mater Bloomfield died at Greenwood Lake on October 14, 1895. She was interred in the family plot in Metuchen, New Jersey.

C. John Croes Bloomfield, son of William and Catharine (Croes) Bloomfield, was born on March 4, 1842. In New York City, on April 17, 1861, at the age of twenty, he enlisted in the Army. He became Captain of Company F of the Militia and served in the Civil War until mustered out on August 25, 1863. Although called "Colonel", there is, apparently, no record of such a commission.

He married Juliette Adams. There were two children by this marriage: Henry Adams and William N. Bloomfield. After the death of his wife on April 8, 1886, he removed to Akron, Ohio, where, on June 3, 1889, he married a widow without children, Fannie C. Wagner (nee Cobb). There were no children of this marriage. John C. Bloomfield died at Akron, Ohio, February 16, 1913, at the age of seventy years and eleven months. His widow, Fannie, died September 4, 1922.

1. William N. Bloomfield, son of John C. and Juliette (Adams) Bloomfield, was born in 1873. He lived in St. Louis, Missouri, and married Florence Medany in 1901. On March 24, 1913, he died leaving a son, George E.

a. George E. Bloomfield, son of William N. and Florence (Medany) Bloomfield, was living in St. Louis, Missouri, in 1930.

2. Henry Adams Bloomfield, son of John C. and Juliette (Adams) Bloomfield, was living in Los Angeles, California, in 1930 (13)

D. William Bloomfield, son of William and Catharine (Croes) Bloomfield, was born on July 19, 1844. Although the date of his death inscribed on his stone in the family plot in Metuchen is not clear, it is probably June, 1862. It is certain that he died in his youth.

E. Thomas Blanch Bloomfield I, son of William and Catharine (Croes) Bloomfield, was born on November 17, 1845. He studied at Rutgers College and graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1876. He engaged in the practice of medicine at the Connecticut State Hospital, Middletown, Connecticut, and in hospital work at Blackwell's Island, New York City. He married Ellen Bidwell Luther of East Haddon, Connecticut, on July 15, 1876; but, in 1879, he removed to Westbrook, Connecticut, where he practiced medicine until his death, February 17, 1905. He was known as a clever diagnostician. He was a member of the Health Office; the Board of Education; and the Episcopal Church, which was built largely through his efforts. Mrs. Bloomfield died on November 8, 1929, leaving seven children, a daughter Grace Spencer Bloomfield, born June 1, 1886, having died August 18, 1888. The children of Thomas B. and Ellen (Luther) Bloomfield are: Catharine Van Mater Croes, William, Jessie Pratt, Thomas BlanchII, Monroe Luther, Eva Gertrude, and James Brownlee.

(14) Mary(Andrews) Bloomfield lived on Wooster Street and then at 27 Bank Street, New York, with her grandparents, John Rutt and Sarah (Rysdyk) Andrews. She received her education in an excellent private school and also studied piano and voice. From time to time, during the summer, she would visit her parents in Chester, Orange County, New York. She was an active member of old St. John's Church on Varick Street in New York and was in charge of the Sewing School of the Church. In 1901, she and her daughter went abroad, remaining about eighteen months. In ca. 1905, they spent the winter in Italy. Because Mrs. Bloomfield suffered from asthma and bronchitis, she and her daughter spent many winters in Bermuda. When, during World War I, the trip became unsafe, Mr. and Mrs. Bloomfield decided to spend their winters in Washington, D. C., where they stayed at the old Congress Hall Hotel.

he engaged in business in the City of New York but removed to Metuchen, New Jersey, to occupy the Bloomfield home (on Amboy Avenue near Metuchen), which his father, William, had inherited from his father, Smith Bloomfield. This spacious old homestead was the third of the famous Bloomfield homesteads in this place, the first having been erected in the Seventeenth Century by an ancestor who came from Newbury, Massachusetts.

Charles A. Bloomfield owned and operated clay mines which were located on the Raritan River between Metuchen and New Brunswick, and he also owned and operated the New Jersey Clay Products Company. (Much of this industrial property was purchased by the Government during World War I, and a portion of the Raritan Arsenal was erected upon it.) A co-founder of the New Jersey Clay Workers Association, he was its first president and one of its counselors. At one time, he was also president of the National Brick Manufacturers' Association. He was a member of the American Ceramic Sociaty and was one of the group instrumental in having New Jersey appropriate funds for a Ceramic School at Rutgers University. He was a veteran of the old New York Seventh Regiment, National Guard; an honorary member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; and was active in masonic and civic groups.

Charles A. Bloomfield died at the homestead, Bloomfield Manor, on September 20, 1929, in his eighty-first year. His wife, Mary (Andrews) Bloomfield died, January 16, 1931, in her eighty-first year. Charles and Mary Bloomfield left two children: Eleanor Andrews (B. March 25, 1875) and Howard Weston (Dec. 30, 1880 - Dec. 10, 1948).

Eleanor A. Bloomfield spent several years in Metuchen but, in 1909, returned to New York, where she became active in the suffrage movement and in the Association to Protect Girls. She was a member of several music clubs and was devoted to opera and the symphony. She attended St. Agnes Church in New York and was active in the Church of St. Mary of the Harbor in Provincetown, Cape Cod, Massachusetts, where she spent many summers. She was also active in the Red Cross, the P.T.A., the D.A.R., and in many other social and civic organizations.

Howard W. Bloomfield was associated with the New Jersey Clay Products Company and the Bloomfield Clay Company until, during the World War I, the Government purchased the property on which the clay mines and factory were located for the construction of the Raritan Arsenal. For a number of years, and until shortly before his death, he was associated with the United States Navy Department. His chief recreational interests were the opera, his large collection of records, his dahlias, both football and baseball, old New Jersey history, and the collection of genealogical data.

Anita Bloomfield died on March 18, 1948; Howard W. Bloomfield died December 10, 1948. Both are interred in Metuchen. They left three children: Eleanor M.(15) (b. May 8, 1904), H. Lundy (16) (B. April 23, 1906), and Harold Rysdyk (B. October 3, 1910).

BLOOMFIELD - - THE NAME

Barber tells us, in his British Family Names, that the name Bloomfield was originally French, coming to England from the vicinity of Caen in Normandy. Its usual form in England was Blomefield " from Blomville near Caen." (23)

Maria Annette Brush in her genealogical study of the Brush-Bowers family, in which she included a chapter on the Bloomfield family, devoted considerable attention to the variations of the name in England. She mentions that a Thomas Blofield possessed lands in Norfolk which he sold before 1466. (24)

Reference is made to "Joane ux Thomas Bloomfield of Mendleaham," Suffolk County, in an account of the Singleton family of that place. (25)

The Reverend Francis Blomefield, rector of Fersfield, Norfolk, was the author of An Essay Towards a Topographical History of Norfolk. In the first chapter of An Essay, the author refers to his own ancestry, giving his descent back for six generations from Henry Bloomfield, Gent., of Fersfield. He also referred to one of the earliest members of his family as "Sir Henry Broumflete alias Bromfeldt who lived in the time of Henry VI....." It is interesting to note that one of the subscribers to the Rev. Francis Blomefield's volume was a Thomas Blofield of Norwich, Norfolk. (26)

Mrs. Brush tells us that many members of the Blomefield family died at Fersfield and that their tombs may be found in the parish church.(27).

A study of the coat of arms borne by Henry Blomefield, father of Francis Blomefield, the author, reveals that it is very similar to our own and that motto is identical.

A book entitled King's Chapel Burying Ground, Bodton, Massachusetts, presents the following interesting facts:

> The Bromfields were first heard of in Wales (28) in the time of Edward II, where they had extensive possessions. Next in Derbyshire whence a younger son, William, removed to London and became Lieutenant of Ordnance in the Tower under Queen Elizabeth (1558-1603). He acquired by marriage large estates in Norfolk, where, before this time, a branch of the family had been settled to whom Edward VI in 1553 granted an augmentation of their coat armor. Sir Edward Bromfield was Mayor of London in 1635, some of whose descendants came to America. The family seat was Haywood House, near New Forest.

Records show that there were Bloomfields - - to choose our own spelling from among the many variations of the name - - in both Suffolk and Norfolk, counties from which many Englishmen emigrated to America during the Seventeenth Century. (29)

(28) A Robert Bloomfield of Wales received the honor of knighthood in the latter part of the fifteenth century. He removed to Suffolk, England.
